Thank you for the information received 25 May 2006.

I have researched our records and have found no recorded archaeological sites of significance to iwi in the proposed alternative route; however, as outlined in our original report there is a highly likelihood that sites do exist and the potential for adverse affects. The proposed alternative route does not alter our original assessment of cultural effects; however, we would once again like to emphasize the importance of the Accidental Discovery Protocol as outlined in Appendix Six of our original Assessment of Cultural Effects.

I have consulted with runanga and they agreed with these conclusions.
